INSTRUCTIONS TO CANDIDATES

Read the following instructions carefully before you start answering the questions in this paper. Make sure you have a soft HB pencil and an eraser for this examination.

1. USE A SOFT HB PENCIL THROUGHOUT THE EXAMINATION.
2. DO NOT OPEN THIS BOOKLET UNTIL YOU ARE TOLD TO DO SO.

Before the examination begins:

3. Check that this question booklet is headed “ ORDINARY/INTERMEDIATE LEVEL – 0530 ENGLISH LANGUAGE 1”
4. Fill in the information required in the spaces above.
5. Fill in the information required in the spaces provided on the answer sheet using your HB pencil: Candidate Name, Exam Session, Subject Code and Candidate Identification Number.
Take care that you do not crease or fold the answer sheet or make any marks on it other than those asked for in these instructions.

How to answer the questions in this examination

6. Answer ALL the 50 questions in this Examination. All questions carry equal marks.
7. Each question has FOUR suggested answers: A, B, C and D. Decide which answer is appropriate. Find the number of the question on the Answer Sheet and draw a horizontal line across the letter to join the square brackets for the answer you have chosen.

For example, if C is your correct answer, mark C as shown below:

[A] [B] C [D]

8. Mark only one answer for each question. If you mark more than one answer, you will score a zero for that question. If you change your mind about an answer, erase the first mark carefully, then mark your new answer.
9. Avoid spending too much time on any one question. If you find a question difficult, move on to the next question. You can come back to this question later.
10. Do all your rough work in this booklet using the blank spaces in the question booklet.
11. At the end of the examination, the invigilator shall collect the answer sheet first and then the question booklet. DO NOT ATTEMPT TO LEAVE THE EXAMINATION HALL WITH IT.

SECTION B

READING COMPREHENSION (7½ marks)

Read the passage below carefully and answer the questions which follow.

THE MADMAN

By the middle of the morning, Nwibe had done all the work he had to do on his farm and set out to prepare for the market. At the little stream on his way, he decided as usual to wash off the sweat of work. So he put his clothes on a huge holder by the men's bathing section of the stream and waded in. There was nobody else around because of the time of the day and because it was a market day. From instinctive modesty, Nwibe turned to face the forest away from any approaches.

A madman watched him for quite a while. Each time he bent down to carry water in his cupped hands from the shallow stream to his head and body, the madman smiled. He then remembered, "This was the same hefty man who had brought three others like him and whipped me out of my hut in the Afo market," he nodded to himself. And then he remembered yet again, "This was the same vagabond who had descended on me from the lorry in the middle of my highway," he nodded once more. Again he remembered, "This was the same fellow who set his children to throw stones at me and made remarks about their 'mothers' buttocks, not mine," then he laughed.

10

Nwibe turned sharply and saw the naked madman laughing, the dense forest around the stream amplifying his laughter. Then the madman stopped as suddenly as he had begun; the merriment vanished from his face as he said, "I have caught you naked."

15

Nwibe ran a hand swiftly down his face to clear his eyes of water.

"I say I have caught you naked."

"I can see you are hungry for a whipping," said Nwibe with quiet menace in his voice, for a madman is said to be easily scared away by the very mention of a whip.

The madman had picked up Nwibe's cloth and wrapped it around his own waist. He looked down at Nwibe and began to laugh again.

"I will kill you," screamed Nwibe as he splashed towards the bank, maddened by anger. "I will whip that madness out of you today!"

They ran all the way up the steep and rocky foot-path hedged in by the shadowy green forest. A mist gathered and hung over Nwibe's vision as he stumbled on, shouting and cursing the other. Despite his unaccustomed encumbrance, the madman steadily increased his lead. He did not waste his breath shouting and cursing; he just ran. Two girls going down to the stream saw a man running up the slope towards them pursued by a stark-naked madman. They threw down their pots and fled, screaming.

When Nwibe emerged into the full glare of the highway, he could not see his cloth clearly anymore and his chest was on the point of exploding from the fire and torment within, but he kept running. He was only vaguely aware of the crowds of people on all sides and he appealed to them tearfully without stopping, "Hold the madman, he's got my cloth". By this time the man with the cloth was practically lost among the much denser crowds far in front so that the link between him and the naked man was no longer clear.

30

Now Nwibe continually bumped against people's backs. "Stop the madman," he shouted hoarsely, his heart tearing to shreds. "He's got my cloth!" Everyone looked at him first in surprise and then less surprise because strange sights are common in a great market. Some of them even laughed.

35

"They've got his cloth he says, that's a new one I'm sure," someone remarked. "He hardly looks bad yet." "Doesn't he have people? I wonder. People are so careless these days. Why can't they keep proper watch over their sick relations, especially on the day of market," remarked a lady.

Further up the road on the very brink of the market-place, two men from Nwibe's village recognized him and one throwing down his basket of yams, and the other his calabash of palm-wine, they held on a loop, gave desperate chase to stop him setting foot irrevocably within the occult territory of the powers of the market. But it was in vain. When finally they caught him, it was well inside the crowded square. Udenkwo in tears tore off his top-cloth which they draped on him and led him home by the hand. He spoke just once about a madman who had taken his cloth in the stream.

45

"It is all right," said one of the men in the tone of a father to a crying child. They led and he followed blindly, his heavy chest heaving up and down in silent weeping. Many more people from his village, a few of his in-laws and one or two others from his mother's place had joined the grief-stricken party. One man whispered to another that it was the worst kind of madness, deep and tongue tied.

"May it end for him who did this," prayed the other.

Instructions for the conduct of Section A.
(Listening Comprehension Test - 5 marks)

These instructions are for the use of the Teacher ONLY and must not be shown to the candidates.

The question paper for the Listening Comprehension test should be distributed to the candidates. Candidates should be instructed to enter the details required on the front cover of the question booklet. They should then be told to fill in the information required on the answer sheet. Ensure that candidates do NOT open the question paper until they are told to do so after the first reading of the Listening Comprehension passage (see below).

The complete test should take 25 minutes. The timing commences at the beginning of the first reading of the passage. The short time allowed to candidates for reading the questions should be two minutes.

If the teacher considers it desirable to give an extra reading of any group of words because of some noise from outside or for any other good cause, this can be done. If this is found necessary, the cause must be reported to the Board on the special report form.

The procedure for giving the Listening Comprehension test is explained in the following announcement which the teacher should read to the candidates immediately before the test:

I shall read a passage to you once. You are not allowed to write anything during this first reading. Do not look at your question paper. (First reading)

The timing of the test (25 minutes) commences at this point. The teacher should read the passage through at normal reading speed, avoiding any distortion of features of spoken language. The teacher then announces:

Now open your question paper. I shall give you two minutes to look at the questions on the paper. They are grouped into three sections. Do not write anything.

The teacher allows an interval of two minutes and then announces:

I shall now read the passage through again but this time in three sections. When I have finished reading the first section you will be given two minutes in which to provide answers to the first section of the questions. Your answers must be given as instructed in the booklet. This procedure will then be repeated for the other sections. You may still look at the questions and you may make notes on the blank spaces in the booklet, if you wish, as I read. First section.

The teacher should read each section aloud pausing at each slant line. A two-minute interval should be respected after each section. Two minutes after reading the third section the teacher should make the following announcement:
Now do your final revision and go to the next section.

LISTENING COMPREHENSION.

SECTION ONE

Mama Bibiana had a well located site at the city centre./ One would have imagined that it was the only one/ since it was always full with cheerful customers of different ages./ She was by nature a very quarrelsome woman/ and had actually packed out of four matrimonial homes/ because the husbands could not tolerate her./ Using insulting and immoral language on people/ was as common as her daily wild make- ups/ which gave her different facial complexions./ At first,/ some of her customers tried to make her moderate her language/ by bringing some sanity into it./ However,/ the more they tried,/ the worse she became/ and so they just let her be,/ and stayed on because of her exceedingly delicious meals./ She had something to laugh about everybody,/ be it their manners or physical appearance./ Whether she had ever looked at her own self in the mirror/ was the wonder of most men and women,/ who were her daily companions;/ as she was the least beautiful./

SECTION TWO

Since her place was such a popular public spot,/ many hawkers would stop by to display their goods./ One day,/ a young hawker entered 'FEEL FREE SPOT',/ as it was known,/ with some articles to sell to some customers/ who were laughing cheerfully at her usual immoral jokes./ When he entered,/ a customer asked to see one of his items,/ so he placed the rest on an empty table/ and moved towards his potential buyer./ At the same time,/ two other customers came in,/ and having no place to sit,/ moved to the same table the hawker had occupied/ but remained standing./ Noticing her customers were standing/ while the hawker was taking a little more time to convince his own,/ Mama Bibiana burst out from behind the counter./ Hell came down/ and the young man only managed to save his articles from being flung into the rain./

SECTION THREE

Unsurprisingly,/ a series of unimaginable insults from her followed the boy/ who had found rescue at one end of the bar/ looking quite angered equally./ All these happened amidst laughter from the other customers/ who had expected just that./

Feeling hurt that the woman had not only insulted him/ but had crossed to his family,/ the young man had to retaliate to the dismay of everyone./ "Wait Madam!"/ Surprised,/ she at least listened for the first time ever to the astonishment of all her customers,/ while breathing heavily and shaking one side of her buttocks./

"Do you use that same thing to eat?"/ pointing at her mouth./ "The stench is unbearable!"/ Upon saying this,/ the boy dashed out and left Mama Bibiana humbled and speechless./ "If only she could change at last,"/ a customer whispered./ She actually could not bear the shame./ From that day/ Mama Bibiana stopped being insulting/ and developed a friendlier attitude towards people./
